

Students at USC need a way to track how many meal swipes they have on an accessible, easy to use app.

Currently students use the Grubhub app to order food at on campus locations.

Students can check their remaining meal plan dollars on this app.

However, many students' meal plans include meal swipes for the week.

While the meal plan dollar amount is tracked, the meal swipe amount is not.

This makes keeping track of how many meal swipes one has left unnecessarily hard and confusing.
